Should you lease or rent solar panels?

Leasing or renting solar panels is an increasingly popular option for homeowners who want to take advantage of solar energy without the significant upfront costs of purchasing a system. This approach allows you to benefit from clean, renewable energy while avoiding the responsibilities of system ownership and maintenance.

Are solar panels a lease or a PPA?

Maintenance: If you choose a solar lease or PPA, the leasing company owns the solar panel system and typically offers a service program to cover any maintenance issues that arise during the lease term. On the other hand, if you take out a solar loan to purchase your system, you'll be responsible for its maintenance.

Are solar panels a good investment?

If you do not have the available funds for a cash purchase, then you will pay more over the life of a loan in interest. Although solar panels can get a good return on investment if you plan to stay in the home long-term, the payback may not be quite as good if you sell to another homeowner who doesn't see the value in solar panels.

In a typical solar lease, a third-party company (often called the lessor) installs and owns the panels on your property. You, the lessee, agree to pay a predictable monthly payment for the power generated.
